

Dr. Kirwin Releases Biography Of Sen. Herbert R. O'Connor

By Frank Walsh Co-News Editor

Dr. Harry W. Kirwin, Professor of History and Chairman of the Department of History and Social Sciences here at Loyola, has announced that his book "The Inevitable Success," a biography of Herbert R. O'Connor, will be released soon by the Helicon Press. The book contains a foreward written by Lyndon Johnson, Vice-President of the United States, who was a colleague of O'Connor in the U.S. Senate; the Vice-President expressed pleasure at having been afforded the opportunity to write the foreward.

Details

The book is basically the story of the life, work, and achievements of Herbert R. O'Connor, former Governor of the State and Senator from Maryland, but it is also in the words of Dr. Kirwin, "the story of Maryland politics from 1920 to 1950 as seen through the eyes of one man."

Dr. Kirwin began work on the book in the summer of 1956 and continued working on it during his summers and holidays over a span of five years. The book is the result of hundreds of hours spent in the Hall of Records at Annapolis, and of interviews with Senator O'Connor's family, friends, and associates in Maryland politics. Dr. Kirwin was also fortunate enough to interview Senator O'Connor many times before his death.

Research

As an example of the thoroughness of Dr. Kirwin's research, he was even able to track down the obscure and rather interesting story of how O'Connor came to be named Herbert Romulus.

Other Books

Besides his current book, Dr. Kirwin is also the author of "Conceived in Liberty," an American History textbook used by many high schools, and of "The Search for Democracy."

Dr. Kirwin did his undergraduate work at Holy Cross and received his Ph.D. in History from Fordham. He is also a member of the Maryland and New York bars and past president of the American Catholic Historical Association.

Three Authorities To Deliver Pre-Cana Talks

For the thirteenth consecutive year a series of talks on marriage will be presented primarily for couples who intend to marry within the year. While Loyola College undergraduates are the primary objects of the talks, they are open to any couple desiring to attend.

First Talk

The first talk will be held on Palm Sunday, April 15, in Room 201 of the Library Building, starting at 7:30 P.M. and ending at 9:00 P.M. with a break midway in the talk. The time and place will be the same for all the talks. The subject of the first night's talk will be "The Sacrament of Marriage as a Vocation," and it will be given by Fr. John J. Scanlan, S.J.

The second talk will be held on the Sunday following Easter Sunday, April 29. Two talks will be given: the first, by Fr. William Schaffner, S.J. on "The Moral Problems of Courtship and Marriage." The third talk will be held Sunday, May 6, and will be on the subject, "The Doctor Talks on Marriage." Dr. Charles Keegan will speak to the men; Dr. James Durkan will speak to the women.

Conclusion

The Pre-Cana Conferences will conclude on Sunday, May 13, when a panel of four married couples will discuss "The Problems of Married Life and Their Solutions." There will be no charge for the talks, and no previous registration is necessary. Those wishing to attend need only appear in Room 201 of the Library Building on Sunday, April 15, at 7:30 P.M.

Editorial

If The Shoe Fits

The campus politicians are at it again... Petitions... Whispered conferences around the cafeteria tables. Tickets... Deals... Lists of candidates. Petitions thrust under one's nose. All these are the signs of that spring disease that annually afflicts our campus.

And yet, what does it all mean? How many times do the students plot, whisper, campaign, and vote for a man about whose policies and intentions with respect to the class and the business of the class they actually know very little? When the candidate is an incumbent, how many students know the facts about his record? How many students vote for the most flamboyant candidate? The candidate who went to their high school?

How many students question their candidates with respect to the class business before the election? or after the election if forgotten? How many students have opinions about how the class business should be conducted? And how many bother to find out whether the opinion of the candidate is the same as theirs? And how many inform their candidate of their opinions once he is elected? How many candidates once elected solicit the opinions and suggestions of those they represent? And when such opinions and suggestions are offered unsolicited, what action is taken on them?

And what about the selection of candidates? How many times are the candidates selected by and from "the establishment"? And what chance has a candidate who does not come from the inner circle that regards the business of the whole class as its particular privilege to conduct?

This editorial is not meant as a mere exercise in the formulation of rhetorical questions. Nor is it meant as an attack on the present officers of the four classes. It is rather meant as a stimulus to some serious thinking on the part of the students before they cast their ballots on election day.

F.R.W.

the Watchdog?!

The new "composer sweat shirts" that have recently hit town have given Loyola's barber a good idea for some modern wearing apparel. It seems that he's thinking about using some of his leftovers and putting a type of "hair-shirt" on the market. Good thought, Giovanni, we always welcome new ways to get "scratch" around here.

Ed Slawski's political friends bill him as the swingiest thing at the ballot box. We agree; however, we have never heard it expressed in quite the same way--or maybe that's not what they meant by calling him a "poll-cat!"

Jim Clarke has just called Washington to get an M1 so that he can feel at home while he is marching in the Easter Parade. You know the old song that goes: "...Put on your Easter bayonet...???"

Roddy Heyl, Loyola's new political scientist, is amazing his constituents by making references to Jonathan Swift and one of Chubby Checker's ancestors-"Oliver Twist."

P.A.G.

Slawski Sez'

On the cover of last week's issue of Time Magazine appeared a portrait of Sophia Loren. The portrait was not very flattering. Indeed, it seemed to emphasize all the wrong things. But the painting typifies the present career of its subject.

Despite her obvious physical appeal, Miss Loren has been endeavoring to establish herself as a great actress. It is most difficult for a young woman who obviously has a great deal of animal appeal to raise the level of her performances to a higher plane. Sophia Loren may be able to divorce herself from the Big Nicholodean if the quality of her performances continues.

Her most recent claim to the title of an actress rather than a cinematic ekdyast is the Italian film, "Two Women." Taken from a novel of doubtful artistic merit (Two Women by Alberto Moravia), the film is well done. The greatest fault is a sometime lag in pace.

However, the noteworthy aspect is Loren's performance. She portrays a young mother who tries to protect her teenage daughter from the ravages of the world in war-torn Italy. From fear of a too early awakening of her young girl, she flees Rome for the countryside. Feeling safe when the Nazis flee, she returns to Rome only to have herself and her daughter assaulted.

In her portrayal, Loren achieves a poignancy, passion, and depth which is truly surprising. She manifests a control which is enviable. In the film, under the skillful direction of Victoria de Sica, she matures. Her image changes from a giddy, empty-headed, dark-haired, Italian Dagmar, to a sensitive, mature, deep, and loving woman of immense understanding.

Slant-eyes and too large a mouth, are a few of the extraordinaries that are combined in this young woman. But all these oddities are so combined to produce quite a unique blend united by a now-apparent affluence of talent.

There Oughta' Be A Law...

The following are some of the less publicized and unusual laws which are on the lawbooks today:

Did you know that one can not be charged for arson of his own house? The law plainly states that, "to constitute arson there must be a burning of a dwelling house other than that of the arsonist." Of course the parents of the arsonist would most probably take a dim view of any such proceedings and so the arsonist is not safe from any action he might take.

Another interesting fact is that when a mechanic repairs a car, he has what is called a mechanic's lien for his bill. He does not have to surrender the car until he is paid, and in the event of default, he may proceed legally to sell the car to gain his payment. There is some satisfaction to the poor owner, however, in that all proceeds exceeding the cost of the bill must be turned over to him.

Although it seems rather hard to accomplish, according to section 2090 of the penal code it takes only three persons to constitute a riot. So you can see there's some weight to that saying, "Three's a crowd." Also the punishment is most serious for disguised rioters.

If you are approached by an Indian for a cigar, don't sell it to him. According to the law of Maryland it is still unlawful to sell such things to an Indian.

John Casey

After completing his freshman and sophomore years of high school at Saint Ignatius High School in Cleveland, Ohio, John Casey moved to Baltimore and transferred to Loyola High School. After completing his high school education, John came to Loyola College where he entered the Physics Department. John, like the other four students being saluted this week, is a representative of Loyola to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. John is also a member of the Physics Club and a member of the Sodality.

Plans

After graduating from Loyola in June, John is planning to go to Michigan State Graduate School where he will further his studies in Solid State Physics. Being constantly listed on the Dean's List, John is bound to do well in grad school.

John is well known to his fellow students as a person who is always ready to help them with their problems, as a person who has a terrific personality, and as a person who can always liven up students talks.

Good Luck

THE GREYHOUND wishes to extend to John its best wishes and good luck in all of his future endeavors.

THE GREYHOUND is proud to salute Lou French, one of the fourteen seniors who was selected for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Lou is a product of Loyola High School and has been an active Loyolan since his arrival at Evergreen.

Student Council

Lou has been on the Student Council for two years--in junior year as a business representative, and this year as an activity representative. This year he also serves as Treasurer of the Council and Co-chairman of the Elections' Committee.

Other Activities

Besides the Council, Lou is the President of the Wolf and Kettle Society, a member of the editorial staff of the yearbook, a member of the Management Club, and one of the seniors who is in the Ethics Honor Seminar.

When asked of his opinion of Loyola's development, Lou said, "Through the institution and increasing use of Honors' Seminars, Loyola College is offering her students greater opportunities for self-directed intellectual pursuits."

Lou French

Jim Kennedy

Jim Kennedy is best known to the students as one of Loyola's outstanding athletes. Coming from Kenwood High School in Essex, Jim became a member of the varsity basketball, baseball, and soccer teams.

Athletic Association

Besides his being an excellent athlete, Jim is also a member of various other extra curricular activities on campus. Foremost among these is the Presidency of the Athletic Association, to which he was elected last year. By virtue of his holding this position, Jim has a seat on the Student Council where he represents the athletic interests of the student body.

Other Activities

Jim also belongs to The Wolf and Kettle Society, Alpha Sigma Nu, Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, the Block L Club, and the Scabbard and Blade.

Enjoyment

When asked of his opinion of Loyola, Jim said, "I've enjoyed my four years at Loyola, and I feel that, in these four years, Loyola has definitely raised their academic requirements and standards."

THE GREYHOUND wishes the best of luck to Jim for the future.

Charles Turner came to Loyola College from Loyola High School and entered the Physics department. He, too, is one of the seniors who was picked to represent Loyola College in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Charley is also a member of the Physics Club.

Future

Charley, after graduating this June, plans to go to Iowa State University Graduate School where he plans to pursue his studies in Nuclear Physics. We are confident that Charley will do well in Grad school because, as his consistently high marks indicate, he has excellent mental capabilities.

Charles is known by many of his fellow students as a impeccable dresser, a guy with a good personality, and a student who always is able to contribute timely remarks both to intellectual and "bull" discussions.

Responding

When asked of his opinion of Loyola, Charley said, "Loyola is responding to the challenge of preparing liberally educated scientist."

With the challenge of Graduate school ahead of him, Charley is wished good luck by THE GREYHOUND.

GREYHOUND SPORTS

by Tom Kenney

This weekend, four of the Hound teams will swing into action, three of them here at Evergreen. Make plans now to take in some of the action. Kicking things off on the home front, Loyola's improved stickmen will play Hofstra College this afternoon at 3:30. Tomorrow, Lefty Reitz's diamond squad will play host to Johns Hopkins at 2:30 p.m. Also tomorrow, the Hound Track squad will travel to Washington for a dual meet with powerful Gallaudet.

Record Smasher Supreme

Arnie Sapperstein, the Hounds' Mason Dixon 100 and 220 yard dash champion, added another feather to his cap last week by cracking the school 440 yard dash record in the meet against Towson. Arnie now holds two school records, the 100 and 440 yard dash marks. Look for him to eclipse the 220 standard before the season ends.

Coach Of Year-Again?

Nap Doherty is making another bid for coach-of-the-year honors, this time with the Golf squad. The Nappy-tutored linksmen scored a shutout in their first match of the season, downing American U., 9-0.

Net Outlook Good

This season's Hound Tennis squad looks to be the strongest in quite a while. Coach Colimore's netmen appear to have a good shot at the Mason-Dixon title.

Linksmen Down A.U. In Opener

Last Wednesday, the Hound Golf squad opened its season on a happy note by downing American University 9-0 at the Mount Pleasant Course. The Hound linksmen, Capt. Ed Conway, Bill Mislowsky, Vince Petroniero, Mike Kenney, Bill Kohlhepp and Steve Krac, all won their matches handily to account for the shutout victory over the Eagles.

Upcoming Matches

The next match for the Nap Doherty coached golfers will be against Johns Hopkins University next Thursday, April 19.

Hofstra Stickmen Pose Test For Hounds Today

Last Friday the Hound stickmen entertained Penn State for a lacrosse contest. Loyola took a quick 4-1 lead in the first period as John Stewart, Jim Norton, Marty Schnuit and Paige Fried scored. Lou Becker tallied in the second period, assisted by John Stewart, but in the meantime Penn came up with three scores to end the half at 5-4.

Penn returned to hold the Hounds scoreless in the third period, and added three counters for a 7-5 lead going into the fourth quarter. The Hounds staged a comeback with goals coming from Mike Abromaitis and Jacques Remmell, but the final gun left the Hounds on the short end of and 8-7 score.

The rain continued on Saturday as the team visited a soggy Swarthmore field. Both teams were forced to curtail maneuvering, as the water filled holes bogged the speedsters down. Despite the conditions, Swarthmore jumped to a one goal lead in the first quarter before Lou Becker and Marty Pilsch countered, ending the half at 3-3. John Stewart assisted two of these scores, and Page Fried set up the other. Swarthmore struck back for one goal in the third quarter, but Pilsch hit goal in the last quarter to necessitate an overtime. The tired Hounds fell victim to another one goal defeat as the overtime ended 5-4.

The Hounds will play Hofstra today at 3:30.

Netmen Overcome Rider; Oppose St. Peter's Next

Last week Loyola's tennis team continued its winning ways by downing visiting Rider College, 6-3. The Hounds took 4 of the 6 singles and 2 of the 3 doubles matches to account for the victory. Russ Tontz, Jim Mohler, Alex Cummings, and Dave Mulrooney were Loyola's singles winners. Tontz and Cummings and Mohler and Mulrooney were the doubles winners.

Barry Tillman and Danny Michalis were the victims of the visitors' singles wins and also dropped their doubles match after putting up a vicious battle.

The netmen's next match will be tomorrow afternoon, here against St. Peter's. On Tuesday, they will travel to Washington for a match against Georgetown University.

Hounds Lose To Rider; Hopkins Here Tomorrow

by Bob Schu

On Monday, April 2, our aspiring young Greyhound nine lost their fourth straight non-conference game to a stubborn Rider College team from New Jersey. The final score was Rider 5, Loyola 3.

The total number of Greyhound errors doubled their total hit output as Ed Burchell, Mike Elliot, and Jim Kennedy managed one single each off the tough Rider pitching. Elliot also got Loyola's only RBI of the game. The other two Greyhound runs came on errors.

Phil Potter, Charlie Nemecek, and Jody Satterfield shared the pitching, with Satterfield being stuck with the loss.

Harvard Rained Out

Rain and wet field cancelled last Saturday's scheduled game with Harvard University much to the dismay of coach Lefty Reitz. "We really needed that game" says Lefty. "Too long a lay-off can cause real trouble."

Too Little Practice

Significant in the Hound's winless play so far is the fact that this year's heavy schedule of home sporting events has cut into practice sessions. Game experience is of great value in developing the confidence and clutch play of a team, but there is no substitute for long practice and drills.

Hound Trackmen Defeat Teachers In Dual Meet

Last Friday the Hound trackmen rebounded from their C.U. defeat to rout the Towson Teachers, 79-43. The injury riddled Hounds swept the 100 and broadjump enroute to winning eight of fourteen events.

Senior Standouts

Instead of the sprints, Arnie Sapperstein ran and won the 440 in 52.3, and then ran a leg in the mile relay. In addition to Sapperstein, seniors Lew Smith and Bill Smuck also contributed to the Hound scoring. "Silent" Bill won the discus and placed third in the shot put behind teammate Charlie Kelly. Lennie Klein was second in the discus. Lew won the two mile in 10:59, and placed second in the mile. Hank McGraw finished behind Smith in both events.

Sophomore Flash

Soph Tony Ryan filled in admirably in the sprints as he won both the 100 and 220. Freshman Bill Morris tied for first in the broadjump with Jim, and placed second in the 100. Charlie Cherry, hampered by a bad foot, tied with Charlie Kyper in the high jump and Will Turk and Dan Leubecker were second and third in the 880, and then each ran a leg in the mile relay. Tom Kenney hobbled to a second in the 440, and ran the fourth relay leg. Phil Pierpont was second in the 220, and had a pair of thirds in the 100 and broadjump.

Next Meet

The Hound trackmen's next meet will be tomorrow afternoon in Washington against powerful Gallaudet College.

Denny Voith jumps to sink a Polar Bear goal in last week's intramural actions.

Intramurals

The Intramural Basketball League ends its season this morning with the Polar Bears meeting the winner of the Porky Pigs, Bombers game for the championship. The Bombers got into the finals by beating the Dukes in last week's only game, 31 to 25. Bob Schu had 12, Joe Russo 9, and Jack O'Keefe 7 to lead the victors. George Schroeter, Larry Curtis, Bernie Zubrowski, and Don Fahey starred for the Dukes who ended the season with a 4 and 2 record.

Softball Starts

Play in the Intramural Softball League got under way last week as Cooper's Bloopers, formally Team X, mauled the Pre-Socratics 19-3. Ed Gunkel led the Bloopers with two home runs and he was backed by the fine pitching of Paul Cashour and the slick fielding of Bob Johnston.

Bowling

The championship rolloff between Sam and Friends and Willie's Winners will be this afternoon. Each of these teams won one round of this year's bowling competition.
